

The half of the square of an integer and one sixth of the cube of the same integer are added to one third of the same integer. Prove that the result is an integer.